Seemingly in a state of trance, still with her eyes wide open, she connects her feminine delicacy to the tapestry of his dreams. He serenades his love, playing the music of their connected souls. With love so strong, the guitar needs no strings, as he strums music discernible only his lover. United in their thoughts, the man and woman yearn to taste the fruit of their passion from their perpetual cycle of love. Serigraphs are printed on acid free 4-ply museum boards. The printing is done by using the hand-printed serigraph method. Hand printing serigraphy uses ink that has been around for a long time, guaranteeing the longevity and stability of the color of the artwork. Each print is curated by a master printer. 23k gold leaf is applied by hand at the end of the process to each individual print.
